

El Dorado Fair Trots through 70 Years in 2009

Perhaps the economic downturn encouraged you to save money by canning vegetables. Whatever the reason for your creativity, now is a great time to make plans to enter your handiwork into one of hundreds of categories at the El Dorado County Fair, which runs June 18-21, 2009.

“We expect that this year will be an especially great year as the El Dorado County Fair celebrates our 150th year,” said Jody Gray, Fair CEO. “Our theme this year is “Hooves to Horsepower” will showcase a variety of things that have changed over the years, such as cars and technology.”

But, Gray explained, one thing that has not changed in 150 years is the terrific value and the sense of community that the El Dorado Fair has always brought.

“Our fair is a wonderful economical venue to bring the family or a date and enjoy the terrific foods, rides and free entertainment,” she said. “We bring a good economic boost in hotel stays and food and product purchases to our communities and we hope that people from around the region will come and enjoy all that our youth, community and vendors work so hard to provide.”

The official Fair Entry Guide will be available in March 2009. For information about entries into the El Dorado County Fair, log onto www.eldoradocountyfair.org or call (530) 621-5860.

History chronicles Fairs as events where people of all cultures come together annually to exchange ideas, exhibit handiwork and share new creations. Only at the Fair will you enjoy exhibits entered by your neighbors and be a part of your hometown celebration. Be a part of your Fair – Enter today!
